Description

Laughter, contentedness, peacefulness, lightness, calmness, smiling: all positive emotions and our body's natural reaction to the feeling of happiness. We may know what it feels like in our bodies, but happiness can be a challenge to define, due to the variety of definitions across different cultures, values, and even personalities. One way to help us understand happiness is by understanding hedonic happiness versus eudaimonic happiness.

- Hedonic happiness is when you feel enjoyment or pleasure from things that you partake in like going out for dinner with friends, getting pampered at a spa, or attending a comedy show. These are often considered fleeting experiences.
- Eudaimonic happiness is achieved through having a sense of purpose in life, that offers a deeper meaning to why you do what you do.

Step 1: Act of Kindness:

We can all benefit from an act of kindness in our lives. When you do acts of kindness, your feeling of joy will increase. A few acts of kindness you can do today:

- Offer someone a compliment.
- Buy a stranger a coffee.
- Donate time/flowers/money to a nursing home.

Step 2: Practicing Gratitude

Being grateful can lead to more positive emotions in your every day life. You can practice gratitude by:

- Keeping a gratitude journal with 1-5 things you are grateful for every day
- Expressing your gratitude for others.
- Practice gratitude meditations.

Step 3: Discovering the Silver Lining

Even when hard things are happening, there is always something good on the other side. To help reframe your thoughts to find the positive, you can:

- Ask yourself, five years from now, will the thing that is bothering you still be an issue?
- Try to find one positive lesson you can take from the issue or problem you are facing.
- List three potential positives to a problem you're facing

Step 4: Connecting with Others

Connecting with others is very important for us and our mental health. There are many ways you can connected with people in your life, including:

- Visit an exhibition, gallery or museum and discuss the different things you saw.
- Do an activity that you don't normally do together, like hiking or painting.
- Open up to someone close about something that you're struggling with.
